ORLANDO, Fla., March 12, 2020 /PRNewswire/ -- Skool Dogs, Inc., the nation's only school-based active threat canine response provider, is proud to announce their partnership with The Village School of Naples to enhance security on the school and church campuses.

Skool Dogs canines are specially-trained to deliver unparalleled security in sensitive environments such as schools. Skool Dogs canines can also accurately identify the scent of firearms and ammunition, providing school officials with the information they need to prevent impending tragedies. Not only are Skool Dogs exceptionally skilled and effective in preventing and responding to shooters, but these canines have been socialized for school environments.

Skool Dogs Managing Partner Brandon Womack says, "We can no longer say it could never happen – an active threat can happen anywhere, at any time". Between 2009 and 2018, there were more than 180 shootings at K-12 schools nationwide, and at least 99 incidents of gunfire on school grounds in 2019. Womack further explained, "Skool Dogs is excited to work with The Village School of Naples to keep their campuses safe".

Dennis Chapman, The Head of School at The Village School of Naples, states that, "We are pleased to partner with Skool Dogs, Inc. to take our commitment of school safety to the next level." As an independent educational provider for approximately 500 children and youth ranging in age from preschool to 12th grade, The Village School works hard to deliver a safe, secure environment for students, staff and families. Chapman goes on to say, "We are looking forward to welcoming the new member of our safety and security team to The Village School of Naples."
